

Directory of Maryland Firewood Dealers

This directory was developed from a January 2013 survey of firewood dealers that serve Maryland residents. No claims are made regarding the service or products provided. To avoid the spread of pests, decrease the environmental impact, and save money on delivery, it is best to buy firewood locally. We hope you will find the list below helpful as you look for a trustworthy dealer in your area. Firewood must be sold by the cord or by fraction of the cord as regulated by the Maryland Department of Weights and Measures. Beware of scammers – a true cord is 4' x 4' x 8' when stacked.

When purchasing wood advertised as seasoned, be sure to ask the dealer how long the firewood has been split (seasoned wood needs to have been covered and stored 6-9 months). Also ask if you can inspect the wood upon delivery and before it is unloaded. You will want to check the moisture content with a moisture meter or use visible clues. Seasoned wood should be no more than 20% moisture. The driest wood gets you the best burns. More information buying and storing firewood is available in the University of Maryland Extension fact sheet FS-937, "Buying & Storing Firewood & Pellets."
